From the Headmaster

We're coming to the end of Catholic Schools Week. I'm writing this before the volleyball games that end the week on Friday afternoon, but I assume the faculty will win. Thanks to Caroline Giedd and all the parents who have helped make this a very good week. In particular, I want to thank the parents who worked at the Sundae Bar on Monday for the feast of St. Thomas Aquinas, and all those who provided food for the great Teacher Appreciation Lunch on Tuesday and who supervised in the gym while the teachers enjoyed it.

We've had our share of weather issues this week. I appreciate your understanding and cooperation with the decisions I have to make about whether or not to cancel or delay school.

Check out this week's Criterion, which features a front-page photo of our students in the Indianapolis March for Life. I also wanted to make sure you saw the ad we placed last week in the Catholic Schools Week supplement to the Criterion. (The printed ad was larger and in color.)
